Colonial Meeting House in Winter.

In winter the Colonial Meeting House was a cold place. It may be said that the congregation sat "shivering on the brink" of perdition, if the temperature of the house and the terrible doctrines of the sermon are to be taken together. Samuel Sewall notes that there was a "great coughing" in the congregation; that the sacrament bread was frozen hard as pebbles, and pieces of it rattled as they fell in the pewter plates.—Misses' "Side Glances."

Mr. Arnold and the American Lady. Matthew Arnold was sitting in his study one morning when the butler showed in an American lady and a small boy. The lady said, "Glad to make your acquaintance, Mr. Arnold. I have often heard of you. No doubt trouble to speak, sir: I know how valuable your time is." Then turning to the boy she said: "This is him, Lenny, the leading critic and poet. Somewhat fleshier than we had been led to expect!"—A. C. Benson, in the Atlantic.

Ultimately coaxing it to enter Brighton, the fair lady received in the hotel porch the solicitude of a sister artist who had passed her on the road. The Difference. Minister—"Now, Tommy, suppose you did something naughty and were asked if you did it, what would you say?" "Tommy—" "I dunno." "You don't know? Why, why? What would happen if you told a lie?" "The devil'd get me." "That's right. And what if you told the truth?" "I'd get the devil."—Cleveland Leader.

Time's Revenge. "Thirty years ago," said Uncle Jerry Feebles, who was in a reminiscent mood, "I knowed a boy that was always stonin' pigeons or tyin' tin cans to dogs' tails. Well, sir, that feller is makin' jest a bare livin' now as president of a female seminary."

Life Too Cluttered. Our modern life is too cluttered. We are everlastingly doing things. We chatter and work and play, and if we have an hour of leisure we fill it with the rattle of a paper. We are prone and helpless when we haven't any story to read or person to talk to or thing to do. We do not understand the lost art of doing nothing. We cannot, we dare not, just sit down and think.
